

Calling Maine Home: Immigrants' Images, Voices, and Visibility

Annual Exhibition by the Jean Byers
Sampson Center for Diversity in Maine

Opening Reception 5:30-6:30 pm November 19

6th floor Glickman Family Library, USM Portland Campus
October 26 through February 26 during regular library hours

Curated by:

David Carey Jr. and Blanca Iris Santiago

Assisted by:

Robert Atkinson, Reza Jalali, Victoria Chicón

In the whitest state in the nation, recent immigrants struggle between wanting to be visible and wanting to fade into the background. Whether by conscious decision or destiny, Maine is now home. This exhibition explores the triumphs and challenges of Mainers from such diverse places as Africa, Asia, and Latin America.

"I just loved New England. I still love it... It's my new home... It's my family, because I have my friends here."

Laura Ochoa

UNIVERSITY OF
SOUTHERN MAINE

For further information or to schedule a gallery talk, please contact Susie Bock, bocks@usm.maine.edu, 207-780-4269